

CARBONDALE IN NORTH ATLANTIC LEAGUE FINAL SERIES

At right: photo reproduced from an undated news clipping. Photograph was probably taken during the late 1940's.

A black and white photograph of a person wearing a mask that appears to be a stylized animal head, possibly a dog or a bear. The person is holding a large, light-colored rectangular sign in front of their face, which obscures their eyes and mouth. The sign has some faint, illegible markings on it. The person's right arm is raised, and their hand is visible. The background is dark and indistinct, suggesting an indoor setting.

THE TEAR FROM ITS EYE shows that this turk was upset about the fact that Thanksgiving Day was just around the corner when this photo was taken on North Church Street. The placard which the big bird wore advertised the fact that Bob McDonald's Restaurant would be featuring roast turkey dinner that Thursday afternoon.

Language

the object of the verb's action is the objective case. For example, in the sentence "I saw the cat," the "cat" is in the "objective" case. The word "I" is in the "nominative" case: "My friend and I will help you." The word "you" is in the objective case. The word "I" is the subject, thus "I" is nominative.

The object of a preposition is in the objective case. For example, in the sentence "Between you and me, she is a stronger person than I," the word "between" is a preposition, so the object of "between" is in the objective case. The words "you" and "me" are in the objective case, and the word "I" is in the nominative case. Why did I end that sentence with "he"? Because "he" is the subject of the sentence and the sentence subject takes the nominative case.

Why "he"? Because "he" is complicated! Not really. It's a matter of learning the basic rules of English grammar. Children in elementary school classes have to learn the basic rules of understanding basic language principles, if they're teachers.

FLOYD

Let it be known that I, Floyd Patterson, proclaim the 12th anniversary of the Floyd Patterson boxing ring. He was the first to fight throughout the state. Floyd Patterson was the first to fight throughout the state.

I sign this paper the key to our country's future. We can be better.
